Writing Memo (NappyTo Classy)

The second time around seemed much easier. The stress of “oh my god this is a college essay” kind of lessened with it being paper number two. There was an added difficulty though. Basing the paper on another paper rather than all my personal thoughts added more to it. I found that I enjoy analyzing texts and trying to take as much I can out of one essay.

What I think I did best in this essay is being able to dive into the author’s writing style. I felt good about getting my point across in how humor can bring up a piece of writing. Gates style was one of the main reasons that I picked the essay.

The long term battle I have in my writing is grammar. Wrong habits are so ingrained in me that it’s really hard to break. I think a way to fix it just keeps writing. Learn from my mistakes and make new and better writing habits.

I think this class is definitely improving my writing. I think each project I do I get better and better. So I can’t wait for the next step in my writing literacy journey.
